REQUEST FOR SPECIAL EXAMINATION

There are two types of special exams:

A special examination for proficiency yields no credits, but may fulfill prerequisites for advanced courses or satisfy requirements. If the exam is successfully completed, a notation will be made on your transcript: "Requirement X satisfied by proficiency examination." Exams for proficiency require no fee.

A special examination for credit does not count toward the University's residency requirement, but may yield credits if completed at a passing level (i.e., the equivalent of C- or better). These credits (identified as test or "T" credits on the transcript) are included in cumulative credits (but not term credits) but are not reflected in either the term or cumulative grade point average. If the student fails to do "C-" quality work on the examination, no notation shall be made on the transcript. The discipline makes the final decision to approve or deny the request for a special exam. The fee for credit by exam is $50 per credit.

The Scholastic Committee has final authority for accepting or denying credits toward the student's degree program.

NOTE: Grades are not assigned for special exams. The complete policy Departmental Exams for Proficiency or Credit is on the Web at: <http://www.policy.umn.edu/Policies/Education/Education/DEPTCREDITEXAM.html> Special exam methods include typical final exams, oral tests, papers, projects, presentations, review of existing documentation, or any combination that provides the examiner with the information and material needed to evaluate the prior learning.

Students may not receive credit by examination for skill courses in reading, writing, or speaking their native languages, and may not receive credit by examination for high school-level language or mathematics courses taken in high school.
